31st SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

When he reached the place, Jesus looked up and said, "Zacchaeus, come down quickly, for today I must stay at your house." And he came down quickly and received him with joy. - Lk 19:5-6

NOURISH

FROM THE DESK OF DN. RIGO...

The first reading today speaks to us about this Lord who is immensely merciful, who engages us in conversation and seeks a loving relationship with us. A relationship born of an eternal covenant that calls both Him and us to love one another, to respond to that love in a mutual embrace.

He understands our frailties and shortcomings, and yet calls us to become the best versions of ourselves and be deserving brides to the perfect Bridegroom.

We prayerfully repent and seek His forgiveness, His love, and embrace. We seek Him hungrily during the Eucharistic sacrifice, and desire to become like Him after chewing His most Precious Body and drinking His most Precious Blood, His Body and Blood sacrificed on the cross for our redemption.

Let us then imitate Him, to be as merciful as He is and extend an invitation to all we meet. Let us come to the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass where we meet Him personally both in Word and Eucharist.

Let us be Zacchaeus and invite Him to come and dwell in us (our bodies), to come into our homes so we may praise and worship Him with our immediate families. Let us be grateful, generous, and gracious with others. And let us show them how merciful He is and how He uses us to show His Mercy, how He showers His Grace upon everyone that wills to have an intimate relationship with Him.

Let us keep repeating incessantly: “Jesus, I trust in you...”

FORMED PICK OF THE WEEK

For this time, I recommend you to check out the Chaplet of the Divine Mercy in song. Enjoy listening, reflecting, praying, contemplating His Divine Mercy...

HERE'S THE WORD...

A Brief Commentary on the Gospel

31st SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME (Cycle C)

"The Lord who calls us is Gracious and Merciful"

God revealed His divine attributes to Moses, telling him that He is merciful and gracious... slow to anger and rich in kindness and fidelity (Ex 34:66-7). The First Reading reminds us that God is good and that everything He created is good. He created us to be good, and the stain of sin upon our souls does not lessen His love for us. God is, therefore, gracious and merciful in giving us time to turn away from sin. He continually calls us to repentance and to experience His divine mercy and forgiveness.

In the Second Reading, St. Paul alludes to God's mercy in the time He has allowed humanity to come to salvation between Christ's first and second visitation. We have an obligation to use that time to spread the Gospel of salvation to the ends of the earth. God, in His mercy, has given us time before His Final Judgment because He is not willing that any should perish but that all might have the opportunity to come to salvation, like the sinful tax collector Jesus called in the Gospel story.

Last week's Gospel Reading compared the prayer of a proud Pharisee with the humility and contrition of a tax collector who humbly acknowledged his sins. This week we see the response of a tax collector to the Gospel of Jesus Christ. The previous story in the Gospel of Luke concerned Jesus healing a blind man who called out to Him as He entered the city of Jericho (Lk 18:35-43).

In this encounter with Christ in Jericho, there is a connection between what happened to the blind man who so urgently called out to Jesus as He passed by and the little tax collector who desperately wanted to see Jesus before He passed by. Both stories are about the urgency of reaching out to Jesus before He "passes by." The stories are a warning for us not to neglect reaching out to Jesus while there is still time for us to be open to God's grace and mercy and to receive the gift of salvation. In our journey to salvation, we need to continue to respond quickly and decisively to Jesus, like the earnest blind beggar and the repentant little tax collector, calling out to the gracious and merciful Christ while there is still time and before life passes us by.

"And the Word was made flesh...and dwelt among us."

Peace and Blessings,
Fr. Ken
