FROM THE DESK OF ROSALYN...

Jesus' mandate to his disciples is very clear, 'proclaim the gospel to every creature'. This is a sometimes uncomfortable, but largely daunting task for many of us Catholics. Let's take a look at what this means and how we can answer this call without feeling overwhelmed. The Greek root euangelizesthai, means to "bring good news". Pope Paul VI, in his apostolic exhortation, Evangelii nuntiandi, describes evangelizing as bringing the Good News of Jesus into every human situation. Evangelization happens when we invite the Holy Spirit to change our hearts and live freely, so we may truly accept the Gospel.

Evangelization is for all, from devout Catholics to those who do not know Jesus. We are called to reject sin daily and grow continually as faithful disciples. For the latter, having encountered Christ in the word, we are to respond to Jesus with an openness to the transforming power of the Holy Spirit. Evangelization is the act of proclaiming salvation in Jesus Christ and the response of a person in faith. These are both works of the Holy Spirit.

St. Paul desires to present the gospel as simply and clearly as possible (1Cor1:17) He proclaims about God's unconditional love despite our sin, failures, and inadequacies. Though created in God's love, we reject his love through our sin. Our relationship is restored through Christ's death and resurrection.

When our lives are transformed by God's love, we are compelled to spread the love of God and make known his care for his people in the world. In Baptism, we are baptized by the Holy Spirit into the Body of Christ, each one of us called by name. By that same Baptism, each of us is called into the ministry of Jesus, according to our ability and gifts.

There are different approaches to bringing the Gospel to those around us using our God given gifts:

i) The Peter approach, boldly proclaiming the Gospel to all, as on Pentecost, may not be for all of us. The ability to redirect all conversations to God is indeed a gift.

ii) For those naturally gifted conversationalists, sharing personal stories of God's redeeming love is all it takes to invite another to a deeper relationship with God.

iii) St. Paul uses reasoning and logic to dispel objections and doubts, appealing to intellectual thinkers. This style is well suited for those with a deep understanding and knowledge of the Gospel.

iv) Extending a personal invitation to a faith-based activity can get that person started on their own faith journey, especially if you are not sure of what to say. We begin another series of Alpha next week. It is a great opportunity to rediscover your own faith. Bring a friend along and enjoy a meal together, it could be the beginning (or deepening) of their relationship with Jesus.

v) If you are someone who has never met a stranger, and building strong and lasting friendships is second nature to you, these relationships are grounds for evangelization.

vi) If coming to the aid of others brings you joy, your kindness and generosity is a God given-gift (Jm 2:24). One who uses their talents to help others is aware that they can do so only by God's blessings and grace (Mt 5:16). As our Pastor prays before communion, "Lord, help us to become who we receive, Jesus Christ to others".

Using a style that best fits our personality takes away the discomfort in answering the call to Jesus' ministry. Besides, it really is the work of the Holy Spirit. All that is needed from us is our yes and our openness.
