FROM THE DESK OF ROSALYN ...

Isaiah was a prophet to the people of Judah. Although the people were unfaithful to God and guilty of great sins, Isaiah assured them that God would continue to be faithful. Isaiah promised the suffering people of Judah that when the messiah came, he would bring healing and fullness of life.

In this Sunday's Gospel, St. Mark was very intentional in referencing the geographical region wherein the miracle took place. Biblical historians tell us that this region was inhabited by the Gentiles. The Messiah was to come to deliver the Jewish people. Jesus, the Messiah, however, went into Gentile territory to heal and to bring them fullness of life as well.

In Romans 3:29, St. Paul asserts that the infinite love and mercy of God is not limited to the Jews, but equally open to Gentiles. God's grace is for all.

"He took him off by himself away from the crowd..." To me, the essence of this gospel message lies in this verse. Jesus values each one of us. He placed more value on the individual rather than on dazzling the crowd with yet another astonishing miracle. Jesus was very intentional and desired a private audience with the man. What a blessing! The Messiah of the world does not want to simply heal, He wants to be relational.

St. Mark also described in detail what may appear to some as rather dramatic exaggerated gestures. While we can't presume to know what Jesus meant by those gestures, based on Jesus' other miracles (Mk 10:51, John 5:6), it would not be too far fetched to conclude that perhaps Jesus was asking the deaf man if he himself desired to be healed, especially since scripture tells us that the man was 'brought to him'. Jesus values our dignity. He stands at the door and knocks, but He needs us to let Him in. (Rev 3:20)

We know that Christ is the same yesterday, today and forever (Heb 13:8). Jesus healed then, and He desires to heal us even today. He also desires a personal relationship with us today as then.

The hearing impairment of the person healed in today's gospel can be compared to the spiritual deafness or hardness of heart prevalent in our own hearts and in our world.

God gives each one of us the opportunity to recognize and seek Him, regardless of who we are or what we've done. God's love is for each person as an individual. He wants us to choose Him because we love Him. Daily.

FORMED PICK OF THE WEEK

Real + True: Why doesn't God just heal people?

Watch formed.org

This is one of the most difficult questions. Here's the truth: God sometimes does heal people miraculously. The Catechism tells us, God wants to heal us on the deepest level, He wants to heal our soul. God never directly wills illness and suffering. When we're sick, God does not always heal us physically. But God does offer us strength and grace to endure suffering and unite it to His passion, so we can experience the Resurrection with Him. God offers us healing through the sacraments.
